COLONEL MITCHELL STRIPPED OF DUTY

INSUBORDINATION CITED BY MAJOR GENERAL HINDS

General Patrick Backs His Air Plan—Can't Expect Obedience To Own Orders After Attitude To Superiors View Held—Deposed Official Has No Comment To Make.

Col. William Mitchell, center of a storm of criticisms of the army and navy air services made in a series of statements beginning September 5, has been relieved of further duty as Eighth corps air officer by order of Major General Ernest Hinds, area commander.

The order, issued Saturday, was made public without comment.

Associated Press dispatches from Washington, however, indicated that General Hinds felt that Colonel Mitchell's language in recent utterances had been so insubordinate to his superiors that it would not be fair to have him in a place where he should require obedience from his own subordinates.

Captain Thomas M. Hastey, assistant to Col. Mitchell, automatically becomes acting corps air officer.

Harry C. Short, civilian aid to Colonel Mitchell, declaring that the colonel had no comment to make on the order. Mitchell is expected to remain at Fort Sam Houston until summoned by the aircraft investigating board in Washington, or until war department orders are issued transferring him elsewhere.

No definite plans have been made by Colonel Mitchell to go to Washington for the aircraft inquiries, Short said. The time of Mitchell's appearance probably would determine his mode of travel to the capital.

If sufficient time is available between receipt of the summons and the date of his appearance, Mitchell probably will make the trip overland in his automobile. Otherwise he is expected to go by airplane Short said.

So far as could be learned, no official summons had been received by Colonel Mitchell to appear before the air board appointed by President Coolidge, or before the board investigating the wreck of the Shenandoah, altho it is considered a certainty he will be invited to substantiate his sensational challenges hurled at the "negligent and almost treasonable conduct of the air service."

Colonel Mitchell probably will not be available for duty in the eighth corps area in any event during the next few weeks, it was said at corps headquarters.

MARTHA G. DESHLER DIES AT FARM HOME

For Years Was Active In Diet Kitchen and Other Charities.

Columbus, Sept. 21.—Martha Greene Deshler, daughter of John G. Deshler, and an active figure in Columbus charity, died early yesterday at her residence in East Broad street, east of the Columbus Country Club. Her mother, Mrs. Minnie G. Deshler, died several years ago.

Miss Deshler was born March 31, 1879, in Columbus and received her early education in the Columbus public schools. Later she was graduated from Miss Peebles' School in New York. Following her graduation, she traveled in the United States and Europe.

Colonel Mitchell, who at one time during the World war commanded the entire allied air fleets, issued a statement in which he declared recent air disasters were due to the "almost criminal negligence of the United States air service."

Court martial charges which are said to be under preparation in Washington, have been expected in San Antonio for some time.

"I expect to be under arrest by Monday," Colonel Mitchell declared when he made public his charges.

"But as a patriotic American citizen I can no longer stand silently by and see this go on."

Colonel Mitchell declared at that time that he would welcome any investigation of the charges.

When shown dispatches from Washington which stated that he would be offered the post of chief of the air service and that all charges against him would be dropped if he would drop his charges and "keep still," Colonel Mitchell commented: "This is very amusing."

GROWERS OF PEACHES WAR ON BIG PEST

Best Time to Attack Borer is From Middle of September to October 20.

By October 20, Ohio peach-growers must have completed their attack on the peach-tree borer, if they want to do a thorough job of eliminating the pest. Paradiachlorobenzene, a chemical much easier to use than to pronounce, is considered by entomologists as the best agent with which to attack the borer.

To get rid of 90 or 95 per cent of the peach-tree borers, entomologists at the Ohio State university point out it is essential that the paradiachlorobenzene be applied according to directions. An eight page bulletin, "The Peach-tree Borer: How to Control It With Poison Gas," tells how.

From about the middle of September to October 20, is the best time to attack the peach-tree borer, the bulletin says. Trees under three years of age should not receive the paradiachlorobenzene treatment, however.

By spreading from one-half to three-quarters of an ounce of the chemical around the base of the tree, and by mounding soil over the crystals and around the base of the tree, the paradiachlorobenzene will give off a poison gas calculated to kill more than 90 per cent of the young peach-tree borers in from two to four weeks. This treatment is not effective on the lesser peach-tree borer, which bores higher up in the tree.

Copies of the bulletin can be obtained from the agricultural publications office at the Ohio State university.

LADDERS

There are long, hard climbs if we would rise
On ladders that stretch to the sunlit skies,
The difficult rungs go up round by round—
For if Heaven's the goal 'tis not reached in a bound.

Climb on though weary and travel worn—
Climb on though discouraged and all forlorn,
Just keep on climbing and never stop
Till you finish the ladder and reach the top.
—Daisy Wheeler.

Not All "Tuskers"

Tusks are present only in the males of the Asiatic elephants and are only about half as large as those found in African elephants. Both sexes of African elephants have tusks, which contribute to the dwindling of the species, as the females are as liable as the males to be killed for the sake of the ivory.

Use of Velvet in New Fall Clothes

Contrasting or Harmonizing Colors Afford Most Pleasing Effect.

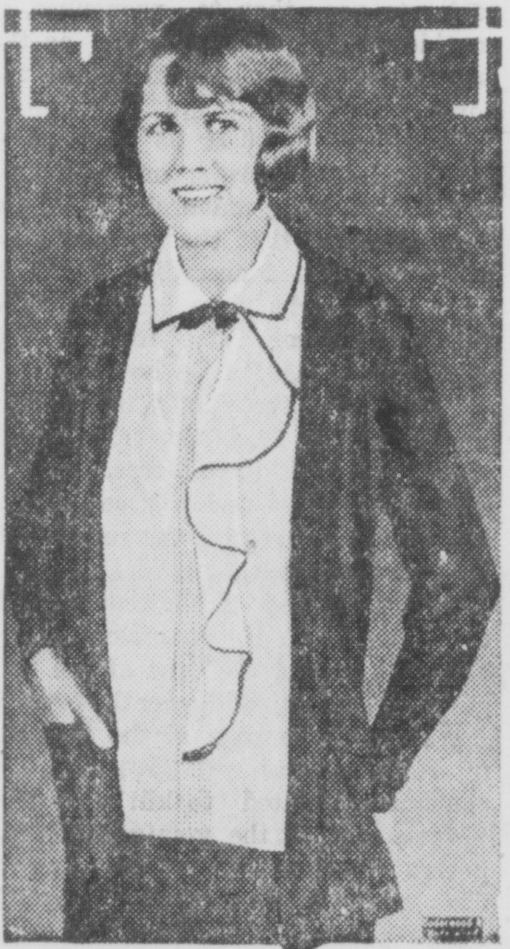

The most important prediction regarding the use of velvet is seen in the advance models, which are especially alluring to the American shopper in Paris, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. While the great fashion events of the year are awaited with intense interest, the trend of style is to be traced in news coming from some of the authoritative ateliers. They are in substance as follows:

The importance which Jenny attaches to materials and details of trimming is evident in the collection of models shown for early fall. In line the tendency is still toward straight effects with greater width achieved in the skirt by plisse panels, aprons, flounces and plaits. Plisses are rather extensively exploited in the simple afternoon frocks for which this house is famous, and this idea is carried out in rep, satin, also in velvet. Wide revers faced with material in contrasting texture and color strike a new note on models shown in the early fall collections of Paris designers. Velvet, ottoman, velours de laine and the crepe satin are shown in groups of advance models. Interesting effects are achieved by the use of velvet, in a contrasting or harmonizing color, as a facing for revers.

A striking example of this is seen in a coat of beige cloth with green velvet facings on the revers. Jenny this season has launched a new mode in the use of bands of velvet ribbon as decoration on frocks of satin, velvet and rep. These appear as collars, cuffs, belts and borders, and in their subtle colorings of old pink, blue green and brique introduce a telling bit of brilliant color into a frock of somber tones. Velvet trimmings are used on evening as well as afternoon frocks.

The circular form is shown in many modes in the latest ensembles. The feeling for uniformity has come to include almost every item of the costume. Now gown, wrap, hat, footwear, gloves, parasol and even smaller things are of one color, or in harmonizing shades. Also the curved line dominates in every feature, making distinctly for grace and beauty. With the varying moods and modes is being shown a circular cape, cut in such a way as to fall in deep points. It has a dash and chic that make it a charming addition to any smart wardrobe. It is now being cut three-quarter length, of fine cloth lined with velvet, forming a garment practically reversible. In an exclusive New York shop this cape is offered in Lanvin green kasha, lined with velvet of a deeper shade.

Tuxedo Coat and White Vest of Crepe de Chine

The United Women's Wear league, sponsors for many charming modes for the school girl, designed the tuxedo coat vest. Note the smartness the tuxedo takes on when worn with a white crepe de chine vest bound with navy blue silk.

Balbriggan Two-Piece Suits for Girls, Women

The little balbriggan two-piece suits and also the jumper frocks of balbriggan have finally settled into their places. They belong to the straight slimmest of youth and although they have done their best to adapt themselves to the curves of older women, they have made the mistake of adapting themselves too well. They reveal the curves too faithfully. Of course it may not be a matter of years, whether or not one can wear the balbriggan two-piece. If a woman is clever enough to retain her girlish figure she may make a new fall investment of a balbriggan and feel that she has selected the appropriate garment for sports or informal wear. Anyone who knows the comfort of jersey will rejoice if a suit of this kind can be added to the fall wardrobe.

To Clean Woodwork
Stains in woodwork caused by weathering or an alkali usually can be removed with oxalic acid dissolved in water to the consistency of cream. Says Popular Science Monthly. This is applied warm and washed off with clean water. Then the surface is sponged off with vinegar.

Average Air Consumption
In the case of a normal person about 400 cubic feet of air, weighing in all over thirty pounds, pass through the lungs every 24 hours.

Birds Faster Than Trains
Wild birds are capable of attaining great speed in flight. There is on record a swallow that traveled at the rate of 106 miles an hour, and a homing pigeon commonly will go more than 60 miles an hour, it is said. Even a pelican has been known to make 50 miles an hour and a wild duck has been credited with 59 miles an hour.

TELLS OF FLIGHT MADE TO MOROCCO

Army Officer Describes Trip
Taken by France's Leaders to War Zone

Washington.—"The recent spectacular journey by airplane of Marshal Pétain from France to Morocco to take supreme command of the French forces fighting in that country, and the similar air voyage of Premier Painlevé to look into the political aspects of the war, were over one of the most picturesque air routes of southern Europe," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The bulletin quotes as follows from a communication to the society from Lieut. J. Parker Van Zandt, U. S. Army Air service, who covered this route, starting from Toulouse, France:

"An answering roar from the engines as the throttle was advanced, wheels plowing through the deep dew-laden grass, tail poised for flight—and I was off on what was destined to prove my most memorable air ride in Europe.

Mediterranean Appears.
"The gentle valley of the Garonne lay sleeping under a fleecy sheet of light fog. Like a child's ribbon, the canal lay curled at the base of the furrowed hills, a solemn double row of poplars guarding its banks. The black thread of the railroad now ran close beside it, now struck out boldly across the rich farm land toward where the valley narrowed before the encroaching Pyrenees.

"A half hour passes. We dodge through a winding pass ahead, swing to the east again, and abruptly there opens before us a glorious picture of the breaking day. The walled city of Carcassonne slips by, sharply etched in light and shadow, and the glistening waters of the Mediterranean appear ahead. As we swing by the eastern slopes of the Pyrenees, the clouds that had seemed so black and ominous overhead now appear snow-white, soft, vaporous, streaming south.

A Sun-Baked Land.
"Perpignan lies in a fertile valley at the eastern foot of the Pyrenees, and here we make our first landing, one hour from Toulouse, to pick up the mail from Marseille. The connecting plane has arrived before us with another passenger, a young Frenchman with military clothing samples for his clients among the fonctionnaires at Rabat.

"It is noon and we are approaching Alicante, 6,000 feet above a tangle of rocky slopes bordering the sea. Sun-baked white huts cling precariously to the ridges. Terraces, burnt dry, struggle up the hillsides. On our right the mountains rise sharply pointed, precipitous, gullies and pockets in their bare sides, patches of rough cultivation on their lower slopes. Dried river beds lie parched in the heat of the summer sun.

"On our left the great bowl of the Mediterranean, green to deep indigo-blue along the rocky shore line, silver-gray on the shimmering horizon; a few toy fishing boats motionless on its placid surface.

From Cool Clouds to Heat.
"We leave our cool height and glide down slowly, skim over a fence of rough piled stones, and settle to the earth, kicking up a great cloud of yellow dust behind us, as we taxi to the hangar. What a contrast with the cool green field at Toulouse a few hours earlier! Here the barren, sandy ground seems to settle in heat and the air is thick with suspended dust.

"No time for lunch. A cup of black Spanish coffee while the mail is being transferred to a waiting plane, and we are off, happy to rise quickly above the mantle of dust and breathe the clean air again.

"A snow-clad peak appears, dimly visible above its companions upon the horizon; two hours, and it has passed beneath us and lies indistinguishable among its neighbors, now far to the rear. Thus does air travel obliterate ancient barriers. Tiny white villages, like clustering flights of egrets, begin to dot the great brown slope rising up from the shore.

Europe to Africa in a Flash.

"A valley opens out and Malaga appears, a welcome sight after four hours. It is hot on the ground, and tropical palms, their fronds gray with dust, border the field. In ten minutes we have transferred to a new plane, and with another pilot are off down the coast, the lower contours flattening out as we rise above them.

"Here at last the long Spanish coast ends at the Strait of Gibraltar, culminating in that strange, formidable out-thrust of the earth named after a long-dead Moor (Tarik). The wind sweeps through the narrow strait, scattering sudden flashes of white foam in the Mediterranean blue, like fireflies against a twilight sky, while beyond lies Ceuta on the Moorish coast, with the highest peak of its headland, the African 'Pillar of Hercules,' standing out menacing, portentous.

The Riff, Where Spain Bleeds.
"The international port of Tangier beneath our wings, white, flat-roofed houses rising above each other in tiers of cubes, a solitary minaret jutting into the air, a gray line marking the trace of ancient battlements, Portuguese or English.

"To our left lie the Riff hills, where Spain is vainly bleeding herself to death; before us, brown, burnt, and dead, the wide, rolling world of the dead, the Moroccan veldt; on our right, the restless blue of the Atlantic. This is the East, bright and shining as a sword, under a pitiless sun.

"The heat at this hour of the day, even at 2,000 feet, is stifling. From my exposed perch on the sack of mail, the blast from the propeller is like that from the opened grate of a furnace; impossible to look westward, toward the burnished sun low on the horizon.

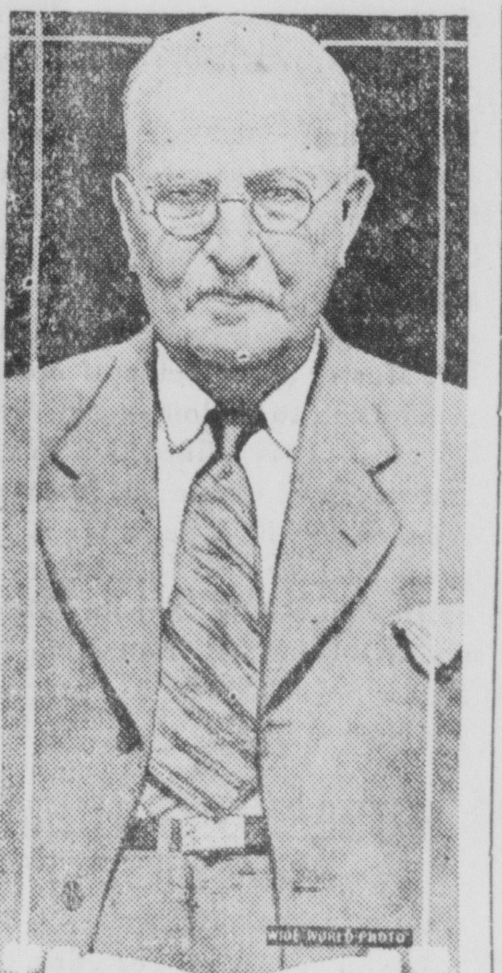

Rabat, the Imperial City.

"I crouch down to find shelter in the shadow of the cockpit, but the oppressive air seeps up and stifles with its stagnant warmth.

"Our pilot descends to a few hundred feet above the Bled, where it is surprisingly cooler. The white-dove-like glitter of an Arab town appears by the blue rim of the Atlantic, the plunging breakers crashing soundlessly at its feet. Then Sale (Sall) of a dazzling whiteness, ancient home of the 'Sally Rovers,' the Rabat-el-Fath, the Imperial city, on the banks of the Bu Regreg, winding down to meet the blue of the ocean under high cliffs, through a brown-velvet valley.

"As we glide down over the Residency, the sun slips at last behind the low, banked clouds on the horizon, in gray mist and secret splashes of fire, and the red cliffs across 'the Father of Glittering' are reflected like a flame in the river."

CHALLENGES OIL KING FOR GAME OF GOLF

Henry Clay Breckenridge of Chicago, ninety-three years old, 6 feet 2 inches in height, straight as a young sapling and with eyes that have lost none of their old fire, is as ardent a golf enthusiast as John D. Rockefeller, and has issued a challenge to meet him at a convenient time and place.

Naturalist Says Luminous Fish Produces Cold Light

New York.—Broadway can be thirty times brighter without the cost of another cent if somebody will find out what happens when one of William Beebe's deep-sea fish switches on its headlights.

Mr. Beebe, author and naturalist, just returned from his search for the Sargasso sea and the Humboldt current, said that he was in the dark concerning the electric power plant of luminous fishes.

"If we knew what happens we'd be billionaires," he said humorously. "The electric bulb is only 3 per cent efficient. The rest of the energy goes into heat. But the luminous fish is 100 per cent efficient. It produces cold light.

"I have a feeling that direct commercial research will not discover the lighting principle. I think some research worker will stumble onto the secret."

American-Chinese Use Bears' Feet as Charms

Olympia, Wash.—Chinese faith in the curative qualities of portions of a bear's anatomy has resulted in several unique assignments for government hunters operating in this state, says Dr. Glenn R. Bach, field leader for the federal bureau of the biological survey in the Washington district.

Recently a Chinese resident of Washington, D. C., requested the feet of a bear, while some months ago another asked for a bear's gall bladder. In the case of the gall bladder the information was volunteered that it was wanted as a health charm.

Although the supposed curative qualities of bears' feet were not disclosed, the hunters have been instructed to forward the first set of bruin's feet available to the Olympia office for shipment to Washington.

Mrs. Coolidge Refuses to Autograph American Flag

Swampscott, Mass.—Mrs. Coolidge does not intend to become a party to anything she interprets as misuse of the American flag.

The story came from White Court that a group of middle-western women sent a quilt in which a large flag was embroidered, and asked her to autograph it so it could be sold at auction. She did not consider a bed quilt an appropriate place for the emblem and returned it without her signature. Finally, when the women sent her a plain white quilt she affixed her signature.

WE SAVE YOU MONEY.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

GIRL'S DREAM OF BEING
POLISH COUNTESS FADES

Cannot Have Barrels of Jewels Because Poland Is Now a Republic.

New York.—A countess for a day, with claims to the whole city of Lemberg, Poland, and eleven barrels of gold and jewels, Victoria Augustynowicz, twenty-three-year-old bobbed-haired stenographer, has seen her childhood dream fade after partial attainment.

The Polish consulate general recognized her contention that she was the descendant of a titled Polish family, but ruled that there is no longer a Polish nobility, the country now being a republic.

"Countess" Victoria's claims to Lemberg and the treasure also have no basis which Poland can recognize, as they are merely founded on a family legend, according to G. L. Sawicki, secretary of the consulate general.

Victoria says, however, that the gold, jewels and land were seized from her great-grandfather by the Polish king in 1853 and that she verified the story at the public library before presenting her claims. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Augustynowicz, who settled in Chicago 35 years ago and both of whom are dead.

"If I can't be a Polish countess I'll be an American one," she says. "The Austro-Hungarian government recognized the title in 1795. I guess the Polish government will recognize my rights when I present my proofs in court."

DWIGHT WEILER

Was Awarded Scholarship In
Violin at Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati, Last
Week.

Dwight Weiler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Weiler, 499 East Franklin street, won a coveted and substantial honor at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music when he was awarded a scholarship in violin there last week. Mr. Weiler, who has studied music for nine years, was one of eight successful students chosen for scholarships from the group of seventeen applicants. He will continue his studies with Robert Perutz, eminent Polish concert artist and teacher.

The Cincinnati Conservatory of music is one of the best known schools of music in this country, as well as being one of the oldest. It has a faculty of more than eighty teachers and has a complete curriculum of musical instruction, supplemented by courses in dancing, dramatic art, English and modern languages, opera, chorus and other allied branches of the art. Its credentials are widely accredited, the school being empowered by the state to grant degrees of Bachelor, Master and Doctor of Music, in addition to diplomas and certificates. It is affiliated with the University of Cincinnati in an arrangement which permits it to grant degrees of Bachelor of Science in Public School Music and Bachelor of Education in Public School Music to properly qualified students.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Fruit Drinks

If you get tired of drinking plain iced tea, try adding the juice from canned fruits to it. You will find the new flavor just as delicious as it is novel.

A Popular Misconception

Canned food is ready to serve. Heating and further cooking are merely matters of taste. Some prefer fruits and vegetables cooked more thoroughly than others do, but in using canned food one is assured that the food as taken from the can is thoroughly cooked in such manner as to preserve all its flavor, nutrition and render it ready for immediate use.

The Home Soda Fountain.

There is probably no more generally popular soda-fountain drink than chocolate malted milk. But it is no longer necessary to go to the corner drug-store for it. It may be served right in the home—out of a can. It is very handy to have this "on tap," ever ready to feed to little children, for whom it is one of the most nourishing foods while at the same time one of the most tempting to them—a rare combination. It is claimed that many of our American children are under-nourished, although apparently having plenty to eat. The difficulty is in getting them to eat the right foods. But all children, as well as grown-ups, like chocolate malted milk, now regarded as the most satisfying, complete and palatable drink ever made. It is made of the finest, high-test butter fat, malted milk, purest cane sugar and chocolate, flavored with vanilla, and these ingredients are blended scientifically.

Indian Slaughter House

When what is now North Dakota and Montana were inhabited solely by Indians the natives utilized a high precipice at the foot of an incline between two in-sloping hills for their slaughter house. The buffalo were rounded up and started on a stampede down the incline, only to stumble headlong over the precipice. The fall killed hundreds of buffalo every time. The Indians then cured and dried their winter's supply of meat. When the railroad was put through and the town of Granville, N. D., started, it was necessary to haul thousands of carcasses of buffalo bones away from this spot.

Now the Blue Carnation

The ambition of English florists is to grow a blue carnation. The uncontested fact that in nature no such thing as a blue carnation or a blue rose or a yellow sweet pea or a black tulip occurs is no argument against the florists' endeavor to produce one of these unnatural flowers. If our gardens were only allowed to show such blooms as may be found in a state of nature they would be miserably poorer. A wild rose is a charming flower, but what reason is there in an asceticism which would deny us the color and form of Madame Chatenay or the fragrance of General McArthur because these roses are unnatural, the product of the florists' science?—London Telegraph.

In the Transvaal a remarkable tree has been grown as an experiment. A lemon tree was trimmed until only three branches remained. The tree has the dark and paler green leaves belonging to the various fruits. About six specimens of each of the fruits grew on the tree this year.

The president, Miss Mary Hapster, read the scripture lesson followed by the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. A short business session was then held. The topic for the afternoon was "Good Citizenship." Interesting leaflets were read; What is a Good Citizen, by Miss Margaret Veach; The Citizens Relation to the Community, by Miss Georgia Hall; The Citizens Duty by Mrs. Ed Hinton and That Was Once a Saloon, by Miss Mary Harpster. The meeting closed with W. C. T. U. benediction.

During the social hour little Miss Doris Leist gave a recitation, and victrola music was enjoyed by all. The hostess served dainty refreshments of homemade ice cream and cake.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Miss Mary Harpster in Kingston.

The first annual meeting of the Bishop family was held Sunday, September 20, at the home of Mrs. Rebecca Campbell at Bishop hill. Bishop Brings Body of Saint Christina

New York.—In a plain oak box the bones of St. Christina, virgin martyr of the Third century, rest on American soil preparatory to being taken to the Roman Catholic cathedral at Cleveland, Ohio.

The bones were the gift of Pope Pius XI to Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland in recognition of the $200,000 which the Cleveland diocese contributed to the erection of a "house of catacombs" in Rome.

Bishop Schrembs, Bishop Michael Gallagher of Detroit and others returned from a four months' holy-year pilgrimage on the liner Homeric recently and were met by a delegation of middle western clergy and laymen.

They brought the following message from the pope: "America has been the hand of Providence for the impoverished and unfortunate nations of the world, and the world will never forget America."

THE MIRACLE MUSIC HALL CINCINNATI

Artisans are Busy Converting Great Building Into Modern Cathedral.

Preparations are rapidly nearing completion for the engagement of Max Reinhardt's gorgeous production of the twelfth century legendary spectacle, "The Miracle" which begins a three weeks' engagement at the Cincinnati Music Hall on Monday evening, September 28.

For several weeks a small army of artists, electricians and carpenters have been engaged in converting the entire auditorium and stage of the famous hall into a replica of a medieval Gothic cathedral, so that on opening night there will be nothing visible of the original modern structure but the chairs.

Much of the scenery and other equipment required to give the ancient and impressive atmosphere to the production will be used for the first time having been built on models recently brought from Europe, where they were built and used by the great Reinhardt in preparing the magnificent production of "The Miracle" recently given at Salzburg, Austria.

And while scores of artisans have been preparing for the architectural and visual portions of the production, more than two hundred singers, actors and musicians have been rehearsing to carry out the action of the piece in song and story. These will be joined within a few days by the regular members of the company, swelling the personnel to about six hundred, for a full week's rehearsal before the opening performance.

Lady Diana Manners, Lady Iris Tree and other noted principals of the company also will be in the city for a week before the beginning of the engagement, assuring a performance of the greatest beauty and impressiveness when "The Miracle" is seen for the first time in the Ohio Valley.

Fire Destroys Wild Life

The greatest single agency of wild life destruction is the forest fire, so we are informed by government officials. For eight years, from 1917 to 1924, the average annual number of forest fires in this country was 41,000. During this time 9,000,000 acres of forest land was burned over each year or an area twice that of Upper and Lower Michigan was destroyed by the red devastator. This loss totals over $18,000,000 annually.

AMUSEMENTS

Harold Lloyd is certainly entitled to feel proud over his accomplishment of "The Freshman," which sent audiences at the Met theater yesterday out onto the street limp with laughing. The laughs start gently at first and work up so gradually and evenly that you don't realize what is happening to you until you find yourself sobbing, "Oh! Oh!" for more breath! Too hearty laughter is a joyous sort of agony no one resents.

The freshman, Harold Lamb, enters college with queer notions as to how a student should act to become the most popular chap to the campus. One of his ideas, gleaned from a movie is that one should do a fancy jig step every time he is introduced to anyone. This jig, and the fact that he tells every new acquaintance that he's just a regular fellow and they should step right and and call him "Speedy," attracts the immediate attention of the school's chief jokester, and after that poor Harold has no rest.

In the hope of popularity he does everything he is told to do. He attempts to make the football team, and is made water boy. He gives a big dance and is forced to attend in a suit that is only basted together. He makes a speech to the entire student body assembled to hear the dean's address. And he becomes the world's greatest single retail buyer of ice cream cones. Finally, however, he gets into a football game and this scrimmage brings "The Freshman" to a finish that is as exciting and thrilling as it is funny.

Everyone in the cast is excellent, and the college boys and co-eds look like the real thing—the best looking bunch of live wire youngsters you ever saw away from a campus. All hail to "The Freshman!" Let no one pass him by unseen!

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Soil Injured by Using ChemicalsWeed Killers Not Recommended for Destruction of Noxious Plants.

The use of chemicals for the destruction of perennial weeds in crop fields is not recommended. It will cost as much as intensive cultivation or smothering in addition to leaving the ground sterile, declares A. L. Stone, weed specialist of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Every year many inquiries come to the Wisconsin experiment station concerning the value and use of chemicals for the destruction of weeds. Mr. Stone reports that there are several chemicals which can be used for this purpose. Among the best are sodium arsenate, sulphuric acid, copper sulphate, iron sulphate, and common salt. There are others but high cost or difficulty in obtaining them make their use undesirable.

Patent "Weed Killers."

Several patent "weed killers" are being sold, some of them as high as $3 a gallon. These are no more effective, according to Mr. Stone, than a solution of sodium arsenate and water, which can be made at a cost not to exceed 20 cents a gallon, including the labor. To pay more is a waste of money and helps to enrich the promoter at the expense of the land owner, Mr. Stone declares.

Sodium arsenate is a deadly poisonous chemical and cannot be used where live stock can feed on the plants to which it has been applied. Sulphuric acid must be handled with great care since it burns the clothing or skin badly if it comes in contact with it. Iron sulphate makes brown stains on any white surface such as cement walks and buildings.

In practically all cases the numerous or heavy applications required to destroy perennial weeds will also destroy the crop-producing power of soil, Mr. Stone asserts. The length of time during which the soil will be useless depends upon the kind of chemicals used, the character of the soil, and the weather conditions.

Places for Chemicals.

Mr. Stone believes that there are special places like fence rows, rough pastures where the infested area can be fenced, stony ravines, groves and other out-of-way places where chemical solutions may be used to advantage. Even in such cases, he urges that the experiment station be consulted as to the best chemical to use for the purpose.

Big claims and big prices for chemical "weed killers" are not justified, Mr. Stone concludes. Taking all the factors into consideration crop rotations, intensive cultivation and smothering are still the effective and standard methods for destroying weeds in the fields, meadows and tillable pastures.

University of Illinois Finds Weed Eradicator

Selenium compounds were found more useful in destroying weeds than as insecticides for trees and plants by Miss F. Marion Lougee and B. S. Hopkins of the University of Illinois in testing the possibility of substituting selenium for sulphur compounds in plant sprays. Selenium, a chemical substance of the sulphur family, is more poisonous than the latter, but was found to be injurious to foliage. But the properties which make selenium compounds undesirable for spraying trees in leaf may make them useful for combating pear blight, oyster-shell scale, blister canker and other plant diseases, in the opinion of the experimenters. Compounds of this substance are very deleterious to such plants as dandelions, burdock and plantain, but hardly affect grass and clover, which may make it a valuable new weed eradicator.

Old Fowls Not Sure as Layers in Cold Weather

Age is no indication of worth in the feathered kingdom. Old hens do not make dependable winter producers. They are usually occupied with their molt about the time high prices are ruling. These hens may be very desirable for breeding good chicks for the next season, but the early-hatched pullets are the ones that shell out the winter eggs. Early hatching birds are those that reach laying age before severe cold weather sets in. The light breeds, like the Leghorns, will begin to lay in five or six months, but a month or two must be added to this for the American breeds like the Rocks and Reds. Asiatics require from nine to ten months, and hence are not profitable as a rule.

Hen Most Efficient of Animals on the Farm

In the amount of edible food solids manufactured, as compared with the weight of the dry matter in her body, the hen leads all other farm animals. A three and one-half pound Leghorn hen that lays 200 eggs per year produces five and three-quarters pounds of edible food solids. The dairy cow is the only other farm animal that is comparable to the hen in this particular.

A Jersey cow weighing 1,000 pounds and giving 7,000 pounds of milk containing 14 per cent solids would rank equally as high among dairy cattle as a producer as the hen laying 200 eggs. Such a cow would produce 980 pounds of edible solids or 2.9 times the dry matter in her own body.

Nonasphyxiating Gas

A new heat and light-producing gas that is nonasphyxiating, has been brought to such high perfection that its heat value and candle power are said to be higher than ordinary gas. Dr. O. U. Bean, who made the Bunsen burner, is the inventor. The new gas is made from oil or the residuum from making gasoline. Ordinary gas contains 30 per cent of carbon monoxide, while the new gas contains none. The secret of its being nonasphyxiating is that it is made at lower temperature than ordinary gas. The process promises to be cheap.

KEEPING CIDER SWEET IS OLD FARM PROBLEM

Cider May Be Kept Sweet the Year Round, Says Federal Report.

Keeping apple cider sweet has been a farm problem for centuries, but chemists have overcome the difficulty and anyone can now have sweet cider any time.

In an announcement just received at Ohio State University from the federal department of agriculture, the University is informed that by grinding frozen cider and separating most of the water from the solids it can be kept sweet indefinitely.

"Sweet Cider the Year Through," says the announcement, "is a commercial possibility now that the chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture have given the problem their attention. They have developed a process for concentrating sweet cider which consists essentially of freezing the fresh apple juice, grinding the frozen product and then by means of a centrifugal process, separating the essential solids from the frozen water, in much the same way that cream is separated from milk.

Five gallons of cider can be reduced by this process to one gallon of sirupy cider concentrate. The cider concentrate, being so much less in bulk, can be shipped and stored much more economically than the bulky fresh cider. It is also easier to keep sweet when concentrated. When it is desired to use the cider concentrate it can be restored to its original bulk, condition and flavor simply by the addition of ordinary drinking water.

Concentrated cider will keep sweet much longer than in its original condition, and in cold storage it will keep indefinitely. Its reduced bulk makes it practical to keep it in cold storage. The concentrated product thus makes fresh cider available at soda fountains throughout the summer months."

Sailed on Famous Ship

Samuel G. Haskell, of Georgetown, Maine, was once a member of the crew of the Constitution, not when she was making her fighting reputation, but when she made her last voyage in 1878. She was sent to Havre, France, when the exposition at Paris was on, and remained there several months; the return trip was the last she ever made, and was done in 45 days from Havre to New York. Mr. Haskell was present when the celebration of the Constitution's 100th anniversary took place.

ENGINEER'S PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES LIVES

Marion H. Culp, San Luis Obispo, Calif., formerly of Columbus, engineer on the crack Sunset Limited of the Southern Pacific Railroad, recently became one of the outstanding heroes of the railroad.

Culp's train was composed of 10 loaded Pullman sleepers filled with members of the 160th California Infantry. At Sedden, 50 miles north of Santa Barbara, Culp saw the headlight of a 30-car freight train swing in from a siding. He grasped the air control lever with both hands and brought his train so near a stop that when the collision occurred not a passenger on his train was more than shaken up, and he was not hurt. He was still pulling on the air lever when the trains crashed.

FIRST WHITE WOMAN TO ENTER FORBIDDEN CITY

Mme. Neel of France Dons Beggar's Garb and Spends Two Months at Lhasa.

London.—Fantastic adventures of a French explorer, Mme. Alexandre David Neel, who recently returned to Paris after an absence of fourteen years in the little-known regions of China and Tibet are related in the Matin, says a Paris dispatch to the London Chronicle.

Having been sent to India in 1911 on a mission by the ministry of public instruction, to study Buddhist texts of philosophy, she met in India the dalai lama, who had been driven out of Lhasa by the Chinese.

"From that moment," she said, "it became an obsession with me to enter the Forbidden City itself at all costs."

She knew the language and customs of the country so perfectly that she was confident of being able to pass easily as a native.

Her first attempts were baffled, and several times she was beaten back, her attendants and cattle dying of cold and hunger.

Convinced that the great journey could not be made by a party, she set out in 1922 on foot with a single servant, crossing passes blocked with snow and taking roads that overhung perpendicular precipices.

But again she was turned back, "as if by some mysterious force." In her own phrase, and after a long detour she again found herself back at her base.

Finally, in 1923, she made the attempt on foot from China, accompanied only by a young Tibetan whom she had adopted.

They were disguised as mendicants, and begged their way. They traveled through forests by night, followed sometimes by bands of nomads, but were never attacked, though they carried their lives in their hands and were stricken with fever through thirst.

Once across the mountains, they were in an unknown land, never before trodden by strangers. Through deep snow they toiled on, with death ever at their heels, until at last they were at the gates of Lhasa, and trudged into the city for which they had dared so much.

There they lived for two months, all the time as beggars, without their disguise being penetrated or their identity being suspected.

"There," said Mme. David, "we lived the life of poor folk among these strange people. It is, I believe, the first time this has ever been done, and I am pleased that it should have been a woman and a Parisienne who has succeeded in doing it."

Deeds of 1758 Found in Strong Box in New York

New York.—Robert S. Murray and John A. Murray of Alexander Murray & Sons opened an old safe out of which stepped the ghostly figures of Mary Darcy and Isaac Roosevelt, who lived here in the "thirty-first year of the reign of George II, our sovereign lord," or to be more exact, 1758.

The Murray firm bought several old safes for the purpose of salvaging their unknown contents. In one were found seven deeds, written on sheepskin and bedecked with seals and ribbons, which recorded the sale of land in New York in colonial and Revolutionary days.

The most recent of the deeds was recorded by Mayor Richard Varick, August 2, 1791.

Alexander Murray, safe expert for the police department, and his two sons have no idea where they obtained the safe which yielded these records of New York's past. Each deed is more than two feet square and written in fine Spencerian script on heavy sheepskin.

Travel Between U. S. and Mexico Is Evenly Divided

Calexico, Cal.—Figures released by the United States immigration office here showed that 9,830,708 persons passed through the Calexico-Mexicali international port during the fiscal years of 1914-1925.

Of 4,909,661 persons who traveled from the United States into Mexico, 3,627,883 were aliens and 1,281,778 were Americans. Statistics from the Central American country were 3,639,277 aliens and 1,281,770 Americans.

The heaviest travel through the port was recorded during the summer months of June and July and the minimum movement in February.

Compilations of the United States customs office here revealed that the total imports into the United States at the port during the last fiscal year amounted to $6,165,601, of which $1,477,349 were dutiable and $4,718,252 were free.

Exports to Mexico during the period of July 1, 1924, to July 1, 1925, aggregated $4,068,621 and collections at the port were $315,639.

Two Singed by Lightning

St. Paul, Minn.—All the thrills of golf are not in driving a long ball or sinking a long putt. F. G. Newman of Chicago and his caddy, Donald Drevs of 2908 Fortieth avenue south, Minneapolis, had a greater one than either of these at the Town and Country club the other day when a storm broke. Coming down the ninth fairway a lightning bolt struck so close that it singed their hair and scorched their bodies.

"His Greatest Comedy" is a big statement—but it isn't big enough to describe "The Freshman"—for it is more than comedy! Yes, there is fun aplenty—more than he has ever brought before—riotous minutes of humor, situations that thrill like melodrama, and laughter that rocks one's being—but through it all comes the echo from Heart-break House where Love and Romance and Youth's Dreams dwell—and where the Jester of Life looks on and Smiles.

BIG MEETING OF ROTARIANS AT LANCASTER

Circleville Captured a Prize for One Hundred Per Cent Attendance.

The Lancaster Rotary club on Monday evening royally entertained their Brother Rotarians from Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Logan, Athens, Nelsonville and Circleville.

The occasion was the Inter-City meet of this portion of the 22d district of Rotary International and the Lancaster contingent left nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors.

The first number on the program was a splendid roast turkey dinner with all the trimmings; cantaloupe cocktail, candied sweet potatoes, dressing mashed potatoes, cold slaw, celery ice cream macaroons, coffee and cigars.

The principal address of the evening was made by Hart Seeley, of Waverly New York, second vice president of Rotary International. Samuel C. Carnes, of Cambridge, Ohio, governor of the 22d district also addressed the meeting.

The Lancaster club had offered a prize, a beautiful Rotary wheel to the club showing the greatest per cent of its membership in attendance; and to the surprise of all, three clubs claimed the trophy with one hundred per cent attendance as follows; Nelsonville 27, Logan 40 and Circleville 40.

The Lancaster Rotarians promptly disposed of the embarrassing situation by awarding to these clubs three of the coveted prizes.

That three clubs should tie for this first prize is remarkable, but comes only as a natural result of the teachings of Rotary and the devotion of its members to its principles.

One of the most delightful features of the evening was the presentation of stunts by the visiting clubs and awarding of three prizes.

The competing clubs were Athens, Circleville, Logan, Nelsonville and Washington C. H. The first prize was won by Washington C. H. which presented a playlet "Service Above Self;" second prize was awarded to Nelsonville with its minstrel troupe and the third went to the Logan organization with its Colored Rotary club.

The judges were Charles Fricker, president of the Lancaster chamber of commerce; J. J. Phillips, president of the Kiwanis club, and Russell Cunningham, commander of the American Legion.

The invocation was given by Rev. David McDonald, Rotarian. Pop Hoenig, of Columbus, led the singing and Clara Crooks was the pianist.

The address of welcome was made by Thomas C. Ashton, president of the Lancaster club and the response was by District Governor Carnes.

A huge basket of dahlias, containing a thousand blossoms, the gift of the Hope Dahlia farms was a feature of the decorating scheme. Other floral offerings together with the carrying out of distinctive color schemes for each individual club was used.

The diners were presented with souvenirs in the shape of products from the Hocking Glass Co., Carbon Products and Fairfield Glass Co., and from the various other plants of the city, including the H. C. Godman, The Lancaster Tire and Rubber Co., and the U. S. Gypsum Co.

All in all, it was a most delightful meeting and all the members of the club from this city and all others were earnest in their praise of the generous hospitality of their Lancaster brethren and of their ability to carry to a successful conclusion such a splendid meeting.

Military Etiquette

In the Yugoslav army there is to be observed an interesting difference in military manners. The army is composed of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. The traditions of the Serbs favor the spirit of comradeship between officers and men. Off duty the two regard each other as equals. The Croats and Slovenes have been accustomed to Austrian etiquette, which is modeled on the Prussian, under which the men are regarded as inferior creatures.

A major in a Slovene cavalry regiment has just resigned his commission. He could not tolerate the sight of his Serb colonel sitting in a restaurant engaged in friendly conversation with one of his soldiers.

COLONEL MITCHELL STRIPPED OF DUTY

INSUBORDINATION CITED BY MAJOR GENERAL HINDS

General Patrick Backs His Air Plan--Can't Expect Obedience To Own Orders After Attitude To Superiors View Held--Deposed Official Has No Comment To Make.

Colonel Mitchell, who at one time during the World war commanded the entire allied air fleets, issued a statement in which he declared recent air disasters were due to the "almost criminal negligence of the United States air service."

Court martial charges which are said to be under preparation in Washington, have been expected in San Antonio for some time.

"I expect to be under arrest by Monday," Colonel Mitchell declared when he made public his charges.

"But as a patriotic American citizen I can no longer stand silently by and see this go on."

Colonel Mitchell declared at that time that he would welcome any investigation of the charges.

When shown dispatches from Washington which stated that he would be offered the post of chief of the air service and that all charges against him would be dropped if he would drop his charges and "keep still," Colonel Mitchell commented: "This is very amusing."

The suit and warrant are the aftermath of a week-end party when the marchesa said her jewels were taken.

GROWERS OF PEACHES WAR ON BIG PEST

Best Time to Attack Borer is From Middle of September to October 20.

By October 20, Ohio peach-growers must have completed their attack on the peach-tree borer, if they want to do a thorough job of eliminating the pest. Paradiachlorobenzene, a chemical much easier to use than to pronounce, is considered by entomologists as the best agent with which to attack the borer.

To get rid of 90 or 95 per cent of the peach-tree borers, entomologists at the Ohio State university point out it is essential that the paradiachlorobenzene be applied according to directions. An eight page bulletin, "The Peach-tree Borer: How to Control It With Poison Gas," tells how.

From about the middle of September to October 20, is the best time to attack the peach-tree borer, the bulletin says. Trees under three years of age should not receive the paradiachlorobenzene treatment, however.

By spreading from one-half to three-quarters of an ounce of the chemical around the base of the tree, and by mounding soil over the crystals and around the base of the tree, the paradiachlorobenzene will give off a poison gas calculated to kill more than 90 per cent of the young peach-tree borers in from two to four weeks. This treatment is not effective on the lesser peach-tree borer, which bores higher up in the tree.

Copies of the bulletin can be obtained from the agricultural publications office at the Ohio State university.

LADDERS

There are long, hard climbs if we would rise
On ladders that stretch to the sunlit skies,
The difficult rungs go up round by round—
For if Heaven's the goal 'tis not reached in a bound.

Climb on though weary and travel worn—
Climb on though discouraged and all forlorn,
Just keep on climbing and never stop
Till you finish the ladder and reach the top.

Use of Velvet in New Fall Clothes

Contrasting or Harmonizing Colors Afford Most Pleasing Effect.

The most important prediction regarding the use of velvet is seen in the advance models, which are especially alluring to the American shopper in Paris, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. While the great fashion events of the year are awaited with intense interest, the trend of style is to be traced in news coming from some of the authoritative ateliers. They are in substance as follows:

The importance which Jenny attaches to materials and details of trimming is evident in the collection of models shown for early fall. In line the tendency is still toward straight effects with greater width achieved in the skirt by plisse panels, aprons, flounces and plaits. Plisses are rather extensively exploited in the simple afternoon frocks for which this house is famous, and this idea is carried out in rep, satin, also in velvet. Wide revers faced with material in contrasting texture and color strike a new note on models shown in the early fall collections of Paris designers. Velvet, ottoman, velours de laine and the crepe satin are shown in groups of advance models. Interesting effects are achieved by the use of velvet, in a contrasting or harmonizing color, as a facing for revers.

A striking example of this is seen in a coat of beige cloth with green velvet facings on the revers. Jenny this season has launched a new mode in the use of bands of velvet ribbon as decoration on frocks of satin, velvet and rep. These appear as collars, cuffs, belts and borders, and in their subtle colorings of old pink, blue green and brique introduce a telling bit of brilliant color into a frock of somber tones. Velvet trimmings are used on evening as well as afternoon frocks.

The circular form is shown in many modes in the latest ensembles. The feeling for uniformity has come to include almost every item of the costume. Now gown, wrap, hat, footwear, gloves, parasol and even smaller things are of one color, or in harmonizing shades. Also the curved line dominates in every feature, making distinctly for grace and beauty. With the varying moods and modes is being shown a circular cape, cut in such a way as to fall in deep points. It has a dash and chic that make it a charming addition to any smart wardrobe. It is now being cut three-quarter length, of fine cloth lined with velvet, forming a garment practically reversible. In an exclusive New York shop this cape is offered in Lanvin green kasha, lined with velvet of a deeper shade.

Tuxedo Coat and White Vest of Crepe de Chine

The United Women's Wear league, sponsors for many charming modes for the school girl, designed the tuxedo coat vest. Note the smartness the tuxedo takes on when worn with a white crepe de chine vest bound with navy blue silk.

Balbriggan Two-Piece Suits for Girls, Women

The little balbriggan two-piece suits and also the jumper frocks of balbriggan have finally settled into their places. They belong to the straight slimmness of youth and although they have done their best to adapt themselves to the curves of older women, they have made the mistake of adapting themselves too well. They reveal the curves too faithfully. Of course it may not be a matter of years, whether or not one can wear the balbriggan two-piece. If a woman is clever enough to retain her girlish figure she may make a new fall investment of a balbriggan and feel that she has selected the appropriate garment for sports or informal wear. Anyone who knows the comfort of jersey will rejoice if a suit of this kind can be added to the fall wardrobe.

To Clean Woodwork
Stains in woodwork caused by weathering or an alkali usually can be removed with oxalic acid dissolved in water to the consistency of cream, says Popular Science Monthly. This is applied warm and washed off with clean water. Then the surface is sponged off with vinegar.

Average Air Consumption
In the case of a normal person about 400 cubic feet of air, weighing in all over thirty pounds, pass through the lungs every 24 hours.

Birds Faster Than Trains
Wild birds are capable of attaining great speed in flight. There is on record a swallow that traveled at the rate of 106 miles an hour, and a homing pigeon commonly will go more than 80 miles an hour, it is said. Even a pelican has been known to make 50 miles an hour and a wild duck has been credited with 59 miles an hour.

TELLS OF FLIGHT MADE TO MOROCCO
Army Officer Describes Trip
Taken by France's Leaders to War Zone

Washington.—"The recent spectacular journey by airplane of Marshal Petain from France to Morocco to take supreme command of the French forces fighting in that country, and the similar air voyage of Premier Painleve to look into the political aspects of the war, were over one of the most picturesque air routes of southern Europe," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.
The bulletin quotes as follows from a communication to the society from Lieut. J. Parker Van Zandt, U. S. Army Air service, who covered this route, starting from Toulouse, France:
"An answering roar from the engines as the throttle was advanced, wheels plowing through the deep dew-laden grass, tall poised for flight—and I was off on what was destined to prove my most memorable air ride in Europe.
Mediterranean Appears.
"The gentle valley of the Garonne lay sleeping under a fleecy sheet of light fog. Like a child's ribbon, the canal lay curled at the base of the furrowed hills, a solemn double row of poplars guarding its banks. The black thread of the railroad now ran close beside it, now struck out boldly across the rich farm land toward where the valley narrowed before the encroaching Pyrenees.
"A half hour passes. We dodge through a winding pass ahead, swing to the east again, and abruptly there opens before us a glorious picture of the breaking day. The walled city of Carcassonne slips by, sharply etched in light and shadow, and the glistening waters of the Mediterranean appear ahead. As we swing by the eastern slopes of the Pyrenees, the clouds that had seemed so black and ominous overhead now appear snow-white, soft, vaporous, streaming south.
A Sun-Baked Land.
"Perpignan lies in a fertile valley at the eastern foot of the Pyrenees, and here we make our first landing, one hour from Toulouse, to pick up the mail from Marseille. The connecting plane has arrived before us with another passenger, a young Frenchman with military clothing samples for his clients among the fonctionnaires at Rabat.
"It is noon and we are approaching Alicante, 6,000 feet above a tangle of rocky slopes bordering the sea. Sun-baked white hills cling precariously to the ridges. Terraces, burnt dry, struggle up the hillsides. On our right the mountains rise sharply pointed, precipitous, gullies and pockets in their bare sides, patches of rough cultivation on their lower slopes. Dried river beds lie parched in the heat of the summer sun.
"On our left the great bowl of the Mediterranean, green to deep indigo-blue along the rocky shore line, silver-gray on the shimmering horizon; a few toy fishing boats motionless on its placid surface.
From Cool Clouds to Heat.
"We leave our cool height and glide down slowly, skim over a fence of rough piled stones, and settle to the earth, kicking up a great cloud of yellow dust behind us, as we taxi to the hangar. What a contrast with the cool green field at Toulouse a few hours earlier! Here the barren, sandy ground seems to settle in heat and the air is thick with suspended dust.
"No time for lunch. A cup of black Spanish coffee while the mail is being transferred to a waiting plane, and we are off, happy to rise quickly above the mantle of dust and breathe the clean air again.
"A snow-clad peak appears, dimly visible above its companions upon the horizon; two hours, and it has passed beneath us and lies indistinguishable among its neighbors, now far to the rear. Thus does air travel obliterate ancient barriers. Tiny white villages, like clustering flights of egrets, begin to dot the great brown slope rising up from the shore.
Europe to Africa in a Flash.
"A valley opens out and Malaga appears, a welcome sight after four hours. It is hot on the ground, and tropical palms, their fronds gray with dust, border the field. In ten minutes we have transferred to a new plane, and with another pilot are off down the coast, the lower contours flattening out as we rise above them.
"Here at last the long Spanish coast ends at the Strait of Gibraltar, culminating in that strange, formidable out-thrust of the earth named after a long-dead Moor (Tarik). The wind sweeps through the narrow strait, scattering sudden flashes of white foam in the Mediterranean blue, like fireflies against a twilight sky, while beyond lies Ceuta on the Moorish coast, with the highest peak of its headland, the African 'Pillar of Hercules,' standing out menacing, portentous.
The Riff, Where Spain Bleeds.
"The international port of Tangier beneath our wings, white, flat-roofed houses rising above each other in tiers of cubes, a solitary minaret jutting into the air, a gray line marking the trace of ancient battlements, Portuguese or English.
"To our left lie the Riff hills, where Spain is vainly bleeding herself to death; before us, brown, burnt, and dead, the wide, rolling world of the Red, the Moroccan veldt; on our right, the restless blue of the Atlantic, this is the East, bright and shining as a sword, under a pitiless sun.

"The heat at this hour of the day, even at 2,000 feet, is stifling. From my exposed perch on the sack of mail, the blast from the propeller is like that from the opened grate of a furnace; impossible to look westward, toward the burnished sun low on the horizon.
Rabat, the Imperial City.
"I crouch down to find shelter in the shadow of the cockpit, but the oppressive air seeps up and stifles with its stagnant warmth.
"Our pilot descends to a few hundred feet above the Bled, where it is surprisingly cooler. The white-dove-like glitter of an Arab town appears by the blue rim of the Atlantic, the plunging breakers crashing soundlessly at its feet. Then Sale (Salé) of a dazzling whiteness, ancient home of the 'Sally Rovers,' the Rabat-el-Fath, the Imperial city, on the banks of the Bu Regreg, winding down to meet the blue of the ocean under high cliffs, through a brown-velvet valley.
"As we glide down over the Residency, the sun slips at last behind the low, banked clouds on the horizon, in gray mist and secret splashes of fire, and the red cliffs across 'the Father of Glittering' are reflected like a flame in the river."

CHALLENGES OIL KING FOR GAME OF GOLF

Henry Clay Breckenridge of Chicago, ninety-three years old, 6 feet 2 inches in height, straight as a young sapling and with eyes that have lost none of their old fire, is as ardent a golf enthusiast as John D. Rockefeller, and has issued a challenge to meet him at a convenient time and place.

Naturalist Says Luminous Fish Produces Cold Light

New York.—Broadway can be thirty times brighter without the cost of another cent if somebody will find out what happens when one of William Beebe's deep-sea fish switches on its headlights.
Mr. Beebe, author and naturalist, just returned from his search for the Sargasso sea and the Humboldt current, said that he was in the dark concerning the electric power plant of luminous fishes.
"If we knew what happens we'd be billionaires," he said humorously. "The electric bulb is only 3 per cent efficient. The rest of the energy goes into heat. But the luminous fish is 100 per cent efficient. It produces cold light.
"I have a feeling that direct commercial research will not discover the lighting principle. I think some research worker will stumble onto the secret."

American-Chinese Use
Bears' Feet as Charms

Olympia, Wash.—Chinese faith in the curative qualities of portions of a bear's anatomy has resulted in several unique assignments for government hunters operating in this state, says Dr. Glenn R. Bach, field leader for the federal bureau of the biological survey in the Washington district.
Recently a Chinese resident of Washington, D. C., requested the feet of a bear, while some months ago another asked for a bear's gall bladder. In the case of the gall bladder the information was volunteered that it was wanted as a health charm.
Although the supposed curative qualities of bears' feet were not disclosed, the hunters have been instructed to forward the first set of bruin's feet available to the Olympia office for re-shipment to Washington.

Mrs. Coolidge Refuses to Autograph American Flag

Swampscott, Mass.—Mrs. Coolidge does not intend to become a party to anything she interprets as misuse of the American flag.
The story came from White Court that a group of middle-western women sent a quilt in which a large flag was embroidered, and asked her to autograph it so it could be sold at auction. She did not consider a bed quilt an appropriate place for the emblem and returned it without her signature. Finally, when the women sent her a plain white quilt she affixed her signature.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

GIRL'S DREAM OF BEING
POLISH COUNTESS FADES

Cannot Have Barrels of Jewels Because Poland Is Now a Republic.

New York.—A countess for a day, with claims to the whole city of Lemberg, Poland, and eleven barrels of gold and jewels, Victoria Augustynowicz, twenty-three-year-old bobbed-haired stenographer, has seen her childhood dream fade after partial attainment.

The Polish consulate general recognized her contention that she was the descendant of a titled Polish family, but ruled that there is no longer a Polish nobility, the country now being a republic.

"Countess" Victoria's claims to Lemberg and the treasure also have no basis which Poland can recognize, as they are merely founded on a family legend, according to G. L. Sawicki, secretary of the consulate general.

Victoria says, however, that the gold, jewels and land were seized from her great-grandfather by the Polish king in 1853 and that she verified the story at the public library before presenting her claims. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Augustynowicz, who settled in Chicago 35 years ago and both of whom are dead.

"If I can't be a Polish countess I'll be an American one," she says. "The Austro-Hungarian government recognized the title in 1795. I guess the Polish government will recognize my rights when I present my proofs in court."

DWIGHT WEILER

Was Awarded Scholarship In
Violin at Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati, Last
Week.

Dwight Weiler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Weiler, 499 East Franklin street, won a coveted and substantial honor at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music when he was awarded a scholarship in violin there last week. Mr. Weiler, who has studied music for nine years, was one of eight successful students chosen for scholarships from the group of seventeen applicants. He will continue his studies with Robert Perutz, eminent Polish concert artist and teacher.

The Cincinnati Conservatory of music is one of the best known schools of music in this country, as well as being one of the oldest. It has a faculty of more than eighty teachers and has a complete curriculum of musical instruction, supplemented by courses in dancing, dramatic art, English and modern languages, opera, chorus and other allied branches of the art. Its credentials are widely accredited, the school being empowered by the state to grant degrees of Bachelor, Master and Doctor of Music, in addition to diplomas and certificates. It is affiliated with the University of Cincinnati in an arrangement which permits it to grant degrees of Bachelor of Science in Public School Music and Bachelor of Education in Public School Music to properly qualified students.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Fruit Drinks

If you get tired of drinking plain iced tea, try adding the juice from canned fruits to it. You will find the new flavor just as delicious as it is novel.

A Popular Misconception

Canned food is ready to serve. Heating and further cooking are merely matters of taste. Some prefer fruits and vegetables cooked more thoroughly than others do, but in using canned food one is assured that the food as taken from the can is thoroughly cooked in such manner as to preserve all its flavor, nutrition and render it ready for immediate use.

The Home Soda Fountain.

There is probably no more generally popular soda fountain drink than chocolate malted milk. But it is no longer necessary to go to the corner drug-store for it. It may be served right in the home—out of a can. It is very handy to have this "on tap," ever ready to feed to little children, for whom it is one of the most nourishing foods while at the same time one of the most tempting to them—a rare combination. It is claimed that many of our American children are under-nourished, although apparently having plenty to eat. The difficulty is in getting them to eat the right foods. But all children, as well as grown-ups, like chocolate malted milk, now regarded as the most satisfying, complete and palatable drink ever made. It is made of the finest, high-test butter fat, malted milk, purest cane sugar and chocolate, flavored with vanilla, and these ingredients are blended scientifically.

Indian Slaughter House

When what is now North Dakota and Montana were inhabited solely by Indians the natives utilized a high precipice at the foot of an incline between two sloping hills for their slaughter house. The buffalo were rounded up and started on a stampede down the incline, only to stumble headlong over the precipice. The fall killed hundreds of buffalo every time. The Indians then cured and dried their winter's supply of meat. When the railroad was put through and the town of Granville, N. D., started, it was necessary to haul thousands of carloads of buffalo bones away from this spot.

Now the Blue Carnation

The ambition of English florists is to grow a blue carnation. The incontestable fact that in nature no such thing as a blue carnation or a blue rose or a yellow sweet pea or a black tulip occurs is no argument against the florists' endeavor to produce one of these unnatural flowers. If our gardens were only allowed to show such blooms as may be found in a state of nature they would be miserably poorer. A wild rose is a charming flower, but what reason is there in an asceticism which would deny us the color and form of Madame Chatenay or the fragrance of General McArthur because these roses are unnatural, the product of the florists' science?—London Telegraph.

Fruit Stand on One Tree

In the Transvaal a remarkable tree has been grown as an experiment. A lemon tree was trimmed until only three branches remained. Upon one was grafted an orange, upon another a grapefruit, while the third was allowed to remain a lemon, with the result that the tree is now bearing all three fruits at once.

The tree has the dark and paler green leaves belonging to the various fruits. About six specimens of each of the fruits grew on the tree this year.

Bishop Brings Body
of Saint Christina

New York.—In a plain oak box the bones of St. Christina, virgin martyr of the Third century, rest on American soil preparatory to being taken to the Roman Catholic cathedral at Cleveland, Ohio.

The bones were the gift of Pope Pius XI to Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland in recognition of the $200,000 which the Cleveland diocese contributed to the erection of a "house of catacombs" in Rome.

Bishop Schrembs, Bishop Michael Gallagher of Detroit and others returned from a four months' holy-year pilgrimage on the liner Homeric recently and were met by a delegation of middle western clergy and laymen.

They brought the following message from the pope: "America has been the hand of Providence for the impoverished and unfortunate nations of the world, and the world will never forget America."

THE MIRACLE
MUSIC HALL
CINCINNATI

Artisans are Busy Converting Great Building Into Modern Cathedral.

Preparations are rapidly nearing completion for the engagement of Max Reinhardt's gorgeous production of the twelfth century legendary spectacle, "The Miracle" which begins a three weeks' engagement at the Cincinnati Music Hall on Monday evening, September 28.

For several weeks a small army of artists, electricians and carpenters have been engaged in converting the entire auditorium and stage of the famous hall into a replica of a medieval Gothic cathedral, so that on opening night there will be nothing visible of the original modern structure but the chairs.

Much of the scenery and other equipment required to give the ancient and impressive atmosphere to the production will be used for the first time having been built on models recently brought from Europe, where they were built and used by the great Reinhardt in preparing the magnificent production of "The Miracle" recently given at Salzburg, Austria.

And while scores of artisans have been preparing for the architectural and visual portions of the production, more than two hundred singers, actors and musicians have been rehearsing to carry out the action of the piece in song and story. These will be joined within a few days by the regular members of the company, swelling the personnel to about six hundred, for a full week's rehearsal before the opening performance.

Lady Diana Manners, Lady Iris Tree and other noted principals of the company also will be in the city for a week before the beginning of the engagement, assuring a performance of the greatest beauty and impressiveness when "The Miracle" is seen for the first time in the Ohio Valley.

Fire Destroys Wild Life

The greatest single agency of wild life destruction is the forest fire, so we are informed by government officials. For eight years, from 1917 to 1924, the average annual number of forest fires in this country was 41,000. During this time 9,000,000 acres of forest land was burned over each year or an area twice that of Upper and Lower Michigan was destroyed by the red devastator. This loss totals over $18,000,000 annually.

AMUSEMENTS

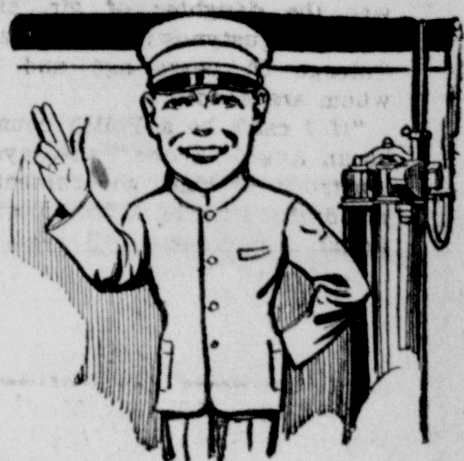

Harold Lloyd is certainly entitled to feel proud over his accomplishment of "The Freshman," which sent audiences at the Met theater yesterday out onto the street limp with laughing. The laughs start gently at first and work up so gradually and evenly that you don't realize what is happening to you until you find yourself sobbing, "Oh! Oh!" for more breath! Too hearty laughter is a joyous sort of agony no one resents.

The freshman, Harold Lamb, enters college with queer notions as to how a student should act to become the most popular chap to the campus. One of his ideas, gleaned from a movie is that one should do a fancy jig step every time he is introduced to anyone. This jig, and the fact that he tells every new acquaintance that he's just a regular fellow and they should step right and call him "Speedy," attracts the immediate attention of the school's chief jokester, and after that poor Harold has no rest.

In the hope of popularity he does everything he is told to do. He attempts to make the football team, and is made water boy. He gives a big dance and is forced to attend in a suit that is only basted together. He makes a speech to the entire student body assembled to hear the dean's address. And he becomes the world's greatest single retail buyer of ice cream cones. Finally, however, he gets into a football game and this scrimmage brings "The Freshman" to a finish that is as exciting and thrilling as it is funny.

Everyone in the cast is excellent, and the college boys and co-eds look like the real thing—the best looking bunch of live wire youngsters you ever saw away from a campus. All hail to "The Freshman!" Let no one pass him by unseen!

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays, best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Soil Injured by Using Chemicals
Weed Killers Not Recommended for Destruction of Noxious Plants.

The use of chemicals for the destruction of perennial weeds in crop fields is not recommended. It will cost as much as intensive cultivation or smothering in addition to leaving the ground sterile, declares A. L. Stone, weed specialist of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Every year many inquiries come to the Wisconsin experiment station concerning the value and use of chemicals for the destruction of weeds. Mr. Stone reports that there are several chemicals which can be used for this purpose. Among the best are sodium arsenate, sulphuric acid, copper sulphate, iron sulphate, and common salt. There are others but high cost or difficulty in obtaining them make their use undesirable.

Patent "Weed Killers."

Several patent "weed killers" are being sold, some of them as high as $3 a gallon. These are no more effective, according to Mr. Stone, than a solution of sodium arsenate and water, which can be made at a cost not to exceed 20 cents a gallon, including the labor. To pay more is a waste of money and helps to enrich the promoter at the expense of the land owner, Mr. Stone declares.

Sodium arsenate is a deadly poisonous chemical and cannot be used where live stock can feed on the plants to which it has been applied. Sulphuric acid must be handled with great care since it burns the clothing or skin badly if it comes in contact with it. Iron sulphate makes brown stains on any white surface such as cement walks and buildings.

In practically all cases the numerous or heavy applications required to destroy perennial weeds will also destroy the crop-producing power of soil, Mr. Stone asserts. The length of time during which the soil will be useless depends upon the kind of chemicals used, the character of the soil, and the weather conditions.

Places for Chemicals.

Mr. Stone believes that there are special places like fence rows, rough pastures where the infested area can be fenced, stony ravines, groves and other out-of-way places where chemical solutions may be used to advantage. Even in such cases, he urges that the experiment station be consulted as to the best chemical to use for the purpose.

Big claims and big prices for chemical "weed killers" are not justified, Mr. Stone concludes. Taking all the factors into consideration crop rotations, intensive cultivation and smothering are still the effective and standard methods for destroying weeds in the fields, meadows and tillable pastures.

University of Illinois Finds Weed Eradicator

Selenium compounds were found more useful in destroying weeds than are insecticides for trees and plants by Miss F. Marion Lougee and B. S. Hopkins of the University of Illinois in testing the possibility of substituting selenium for sulphur compounds in plant sprays. Selenium, a chemical substance of the sulphur family, is more poisonous than the latter, but was found to be injurious to foliage. But the properties which make selenium compounds undesirable for spraying trees in leaf may make them useful for combating pear blight, oyster-shell scale, blister canker and other plant diseases, in the opinion of the experimenters. Compounds of this substance are very deleterious to such plants as dandelions, burdock and plantain, but hardly affect grass and clover, which may make it a valuable new weed eradicator.

Old Fowls Not Sure as Layers in Cold Weather

Age is no indication of worth in the feathered kingdom. Old hens do not make dependable winter producers. They are usually occupied with their molt about the time high prices are ruling. These hens may be very desirable for breeding good chicks for the next season, but the early-hatched pullets are the ones that shell out the winter eggs. Early hatched birds are those that reach laying age before severe cold weather sets in. The light breeds, like the Leghorns, will begin to lay in five or six months, but a month or two must be added to this for the American breeds like the Rocks and Reds. Asiatics require from nine to ten months, and hence are not profitable as a rule.

Hen Most Efficient of Animals on the Farm

In the amount of edible food solids manufactured, as compared with the weight of the dry matter in her body, the hen leads all other farm animals. A three and one-half pound Leghorn hen that lays 200 eggs per year produces five and three-quarters pounds of edible food solids. The dairy cow is the only other farm animal that is comparable to the hen in this particular.

A Jersey cow weighing 1,000 pounds and giving 7,000 pounds of milk containing 14 per cent solids would rank equally as high among dairy cattle as a producer as the hen laying 200 eggs. Such a cow would produce 980 pounds of edible solids or 2.9 times the dry matter in her own body.

Nonasphyxiating Gas

A new heat and light-producing gas that is nonasphyxiating, has been brought to such high perfection that its heat value and candle power are said to be higher than ordinary gas. Dr. O. U. Bean, who made the Bunsen burner, is the inventor. The new gas is made from oil or the residuum from making gasoline. Ordinary gas contains 30 per cent of carbon monoxide, while the new gas contains none. The secret of its being nonasphyxiating is that it is made at lower temperature than ordinary gas. The process promises to be cheap.

KEEPING CIDER SWEET IS OLD FARM PROBLEM

Cider May Be Kept Sweet the Year Round, Says Federal Report.

Keeping apple cider sweet has been a farm problem for centuries, but chemists have overcome the difficulty and anyone can now have sweet cider any time.

In an announcement just received at Ohio State University from the federal department of agriculture, the University is informed that by grinding frozen cider and separating most of the water from the solids it can be kept sweet indefinitely.

"Sweet Cider the Year Through," says the announcement, "is a commercial possibility now that the chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture have given the problem their attention. They have developed a process for concentrating sweet cider which consists essentially of freezing the fresh apple juice, grinding the frozen product, and then by means of a centrifugal process, separating the essential solids from the frozen water, in much the same way that cream is separated from milk.

Five gallons of cider can be reduced by this process to one gallon of sirupy cider concentrate. The cider concentrate, being so much less in bulk, can be shipped and stored much more economically than the bulky fresh cider. It is also easier to keep sweet when concentrated. When it is desired to use the cider concentrate it can be restored to its original bulk, condition and flavor simply by the addition of ordinary drinking water.

Concentrated cider will keep sweet much longer than in its original condition, and in cold storage it will keep indefinitely. Its reduced bulk makes it practical to keep it in cold storage. The concentrated product thus makes fresh cider available at soda fountains throughout the summer months."

Sailed on Famous Ship

Samuel G. Haskell, of Georgetown, Maine, was once a member of the crew of the Constitution, not when she was making her fighting reputation, but when she made her last voyage in 1878. She was sent to Havre, France, when the exposition at Paris was on, and remained there several months; the return trip was the last she ever made, and was done in 45 days from Havre to New York. Mr. Haskell was present when the celebration of the Constitution's 100th anniversary took place.

ENGINEER'S PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES LIVES

Marion H. Culp, San Luis Obispo, Calif., formerly of Columbus, engineer on the crack Sunset Limited of the Southern Pacific Railroad, recently became one of the outstanding heroes of the railroad.

Culp's train was composed of 10 loaded Pullman sleepers filled with members of the 160th California Infantry. At Sedden, 50 miles north of Santa Barbara, Culp saw the headlight of a 30-car freight train swing in from a siding. He grasped the air control lever with both hands and brought his train to a stop just as the collision occurred. Not a passenger on his train was more than shaken up, and he was not hurt. He was still pulling on the air lever when the trains crashed.

Milking Hand Misplaced

FIRST WHITE WOMAN TO ENTER FORBIDDEN CITY

Mme. Neel of France Dons Beggar's Garb and Spends Two Months at Lhasa.

London.—Fantastic adventures of a French explorer, Mme. Alexandre David Neel, who recently returned to Paris after an absence of fourteen years in the little-known regions of China and Tibet are related in the Matin, says a Paris dispatch to the London Chronicle.

Having been sent to India in 1911 on a mission by the ministry of public instruction, to study Buddhist texts of philosophy, she met in India the dalai lama, who had been driven out of Lhasa by the Chinese.

"From that moment," she said, "it became an obsession with me to enter the Forbidden City itself at all costs."

She knew the language and customs of the country so perfectly that she was confident of being able to pass easily as a native.

Her first attempts were baffled, and several times she was beaten back, her attendants and cattle dying of cold and hunger.

Convinced that the great journey could not be made by a party, she set out in 1922 on foot with a single servant, crossing passes blocked with snow and taking roads that overhung perpendicular precipices.

But again she was turned back, "as if by some mysterious force," in her own phrase, and after a long detour she again found herself back at her base.

Finally, in 1923, she made the attempt on foot from China, accompanied only by a young Tibetan whom she had adopted.

They were disguised as mendicants, and begged their way. They traveled through forests by night, followed sometimes by bands of nomads, but were never attacked, though they carried their lives in their hands and were stricken with fever through thirst.

Once across the mountains, they were in an unknown land, never before trodden by strangers. Through deep snow they toiled on, with death ever at their heels, until at last they were at the gates of Lhasa, and trudged into the city for which they had dared so much.

There they lived for two months, all the time as beggars, without their disguise being penetrated or their identity being suspected.

"There," said Mme. David, "we lived the life of poor folk among these strange people. It is, I believe, the first time this has ever been done, and I am pleased that it should have been a woman and a Parisienne who has succeeded in doing it."

Deeds of 1758 Found in Strong Box in New York

New York.—Robert S. Murray and John A. Murray of Alexander Murray & Sons opened an old safe out of which stepped the ghostly figures of Mary Darcy and Isaac Roosevelt, who lived here in the "thirty-first year of the reign of George II, our sovereign lord," or to be more exact, 1758.

The Murray firm bought several old safes for the purpose of salvaging their unknown contents. In one were found seven deeds, written on sheepskin and bedecked with seals and ribbons, which recorded the sale of land in New York in colonial and Revolutionary days.

The most recent of the deeds was recorded by Mayor Richard Varick, August 2, 1791.

Alexander Murray, safe expert for the police department, and his two sons have no idea where they obtained the safe which yielded these records of New York's past. Each deed is more than two feet square and written in fine Spencerian script on heavy sheepskin.

Travel Between U. S. and Mexico Is Evenly Divided

Calexico, Cal.—Figures released by the United States immigration office here showed that 9,830,708 persons passed through the Calexico-Mexicali international port during the fiscal years of 1914-1925.

Of 4,900,061 persons who traveled from the United States into Mexico, 3,027,883 were aliens and 1,281,778 were Americans. Statistics from the Central American country were 3,639,277 aliens and 1,281,770 Americans.

The heaviest travel through the port was recorded during the summer months of June and July and the minimum movement in February.

Compilations of the United States customs office here revealed that the total imports into the United States at the port during the last fiscal year amounted to $6,165,601, of which $1,477,349 were dutiable and $4,718,252 were free.

Exports to Mexico during the period of July 1, 1924, to July 1, 1925, aggregated $4,068,621 and collections at the port were $315,639.

Two Singed by Lightning

St. Paul, Minn.—All the thrills of golf are not in driving a long ball or sinking a long putt. F. G. Newman of Chicago and his caddy, Donald Drevs of 2908 Fortleth avenue south, Minneapolis, had a greater one than either of these at the Town and Country club the other day when a storm broke. Coming down the ninth fairway a lightning bolt struck so close that it singed their hair and scorched their bodies.

"His Greatest Comedy" is a big statement—but it isn't big enough to describe "The Freshman"—for it is more than comedy! Yes, there is fun aplenty—more than he has ever brought before—riotous minutes of humor, situations that thrill like melodrama, and laughter that rocks one's being—but through it all comes the echo from Heart-break House where Love and Romance and Youth's Dreams dwell—and where the Jester of Life looks on and Smiles.

BIG MEETING OF ROTARIANS AT LANCASTER

Circleville Captured a Prize for One Hundred Per Cent Attendance.

The Lancaster Rotary club on Monday evening royally entertained their Brother Rotarians from Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Logan, Athens, Nelsonville and Circleville.

The occasion was the Inter-City meet of this portion of the 22d district of Rotary International and the Lancaster contingent left nothing undone for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors.

The first number on the program was a splendid roast turkey dinner with all the trimmings; cantaloupe cocktail, candied sweet potatoes, dressing mashed potatoes, cold slaw, celery ice cream macaroons, coffee and cigars.

The principal address of the evening was made by Hart Seeley, of Waverly New York, second vice president of Rotary International. Samuel C. Carnes, of Cambridge, Ohio, governor of the 22d district also addressed the meeting.

The Lancaster club had offered a prize, a beautiful Rotary wheel to the club showing the greatest per cent of its membership in attendance; and to the surprise of all, three clubs claimed the trophy with one hundred per cent attendance as follows; Nelsonville 27, Logan 40 and Circleville 40.

The Lancaster Rotarians promptly disposed of the embarrassing situation by awarding to these clubs three of the coveted prizes.

That three clubs should tie for this first prize is remarkable, but comes only as a natural result of the teachings of Rotary and the devotion of its members to its principles.

One of the most delightful features of the evening was the presentation of stunts by the visiting clubs and awarding of three prizes.

The competing clubs were Athens, Circleville, Logan, Nelsonville and Washington C. H. The first prize was won by Washington C. H. which presented a playlet "Service Above Self;" second prize was awarded to Nelsonville with its minstrel troupe and the third went to the Logan organization with its Colored Rotary club.

The judges were Charles Fricke, president of the Lancaster chamber of commerce; J. J. Phillips, president of the Kiwanis club, and Russell Cunningham, commander of the American Legion.

The invocation was given by Rev. David McDonald Rotarian. Pop Hoenig, of Columbus, led the singing and Clara Crooks was the pianist.

The address of welcome was made by Thomas C. Ashton, president of the Lancaster club and the response was by District Governor Carnes.

A huge basket of dahlias, containing a thousand blossoms, the gift of the Hope Dahlia farms was a feature of the decorating scheme. Other floral offerings together with the carrying out of distinctive color schemes for each individual club was used.

The diners were presented with souvenirs in the shape of products from the Hocking Glass Co., Carbon Products and Fairfield Glass Co., and from the various other plants of the city, including the H. C. Godman, The Lancaster Tire and Rubber Co., and the U. S. Gypsum Co.

All in all, it was a most delightful meeting and all the members of the club from this city and all others were earnest in their praise of the generous hospitality of their Lancaster brethren and of their ability to carry to a successful conclusion such a splendid meeting.

Military Etiquette

In the Yugoslav army there is to be observed an interesting difference in military manners. The army is composed of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. The traditions of the Serbs favor the spirit of comradeship between officers and men. Off duty the two regard each other as equals. The Croats and Slovenes have been accustomed to Austrian etiquette, which is modeled on the Prussian, under which the men are regarded as inferior creatures.

A major in a Slovene cavalry regiment has just resigned his commission. He could not tolerate the sight of his Serb colonel sitting in a restaurant engaged in friendly conversation with one of his soldiers.

Origin of "A No. 1"

So far as known, this originated in the classification of wooden ships by Lloyd's, the English insurance association. According to their classification, A 1 or A No. 1 indicated that the equipment and ship were in first-class condition.

"The Store That Treats You Right."

"Get in the Well Dressed Circle"

A feature in connection with Club Clothes is the fact that the models are always correct and in good taste. The designing staff steers clear of the extreme, which accounts for the good looking lines of Club Clothes.

We are showing a splendid array of dependable fabrics in the season's choicest colorings. Among them you will find the suit which you will want, which will fit you and which you will enjoy wearing.

And when you consider the low prices at which Club Clothes are sold, you naturally wonder how it is done. The answer is simply this: Club Clothes are manufactured by a large organization with a large sales volume.

The tailoring factories are operated on a highly efficient basis and the cost of manufacture is reduced to a minimum. Let us show you.
